Evolutionary leaders prevent our dreams from being forever locked in potential reality. Just as potential energy is stored within an object until the object moves, potential reality is locked within us until someone, the evolutionary leader in this case, moves us to activate it. To manifest our idea in the real world.

Building on this system dynamics foundation, we propose to take leadership one step further, to what we call evolutionary leadership. The natural process of evolution offers a compelling model of how leaders might intentionally design and guide growth and balancing processes to create a viable organization.
